Election of Directors

The directors are divided into three classes. Policy owners elect one class of directors at each annual election. Members of each class are elected for a three-year term.

The board proposes that the policy owners vote in favor of the re-election of Claire L. Babineaux-Fontenot, Ralph de la Vega, Mark L. Feidler and Donna H. Kinnaird as directors of the company. If elected, their terms will expire in 2028. The nominees, whose biographies appear on the following pages, are all current directors of New York Life. Each nominee has indicated that he or she will serve if elected.

Policy owners are not being asked to vote with respect to the directors continuing in office. The biographies of these directors are included for informational purposes only. All director biographies are current as of January 1, 2025.
